

After The Sirens "Instead Of Beauty, Branding"

Visit "Instead Of Beauty, Branding" on MotoLyrics.com

I meant to see you one more time
In that white dress splashed with brine
From the northern coast
Where we learned our lessons the first time.

A line assigned to paper,
Maybe lines under the eyes.
We meant to write each other,
But it never quite worked out right.

Your eyes were light when there was no light.

The cans are scuttling;
The end of summer brings an allergy to common things.

And you could be on an eastbound train in half a day
But I wouldn't meet you
Except on paper and maybe film.

This is not sentiment.
I will not settle this.
This is not pining, Esther, this is crime!
There are clouds coming in with the tide
And I don't blame you but I can't see why
You'd leave me here in this beautiful place,
Waiting for beauty.

Visit After The Sirens page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.