There's a thin line
between love and hate I'm standing in a no man's land and I'm afraid
To try and reach the other side
How could you give back what you took and tried to hide?
I should have never trusted you Left you by yourself
I watched for far too long
Now you can't get out You made me think you were in touch
and oh, the pain I felt when I knew you'd moved on I never realized
you were running in circles I let you lead when I knew damn well you were blind
I trusted you
