I see your face in the frame on my desk
It Meant a lot now it means a lot less

It's just a place for the dust in my room to rest
I see the letters that were written for me
They said you cared and I totally believed
They didn't mention that five months later you'd leave
[Chorus]

You could have told me anything
You could have told me anything
To make me understand
You could have told me anything
'Cause I don't understand

I see the bracelet you gave me back then
Made it for me so I'd never forget
It must have worked 'cause I haven't forgotten you yet

We'd talk for hours before you'd go down
I see the bed where we used to mess around
That was before you decided not to keep me around
You could have told me anything
You could have told me anything
You could have told me anything

To make me understand
You could have told me anything
You could have told me anything
You could have told me anything

To make me understand
'Cause I don't understand
You could have told me why you had to go
I try to tell myself just let it go
But I see your face
It's everywhere I go

You could have told me anything
You could have told me anything
You could have told me anything
To make me understand

You could have told me anything

You could have told me anything

To make me understand

You could have told me anything

'Cause I don't understand

No I don't understand
