The moment came and us passed by
Is this our fate, complacency?
Nothing's changed and nothing will
As we dismiss the mistakes

There's no action, we hesitate
Stay in line, and walk straight
We've been tamed, domesticated
By our fear that dominates

We have, we have been calmed
But I remember a revolution song
We have, we have been calmed
But I remember a revolution song

I recall warning signs
I recall a voice inside
Speaking out, shouting proud
I recall singing loud

The moment came and passed us by
This isn't fate, it's our lives
Nothing's changed, but nothing lasts
If we don't forget, those mistakes

We have, we have been calmed
But I remember a revolution song
We have, we have been calmed
But I remember a revolution song
We have, we have been calmed
But I remember a revolution song
We have, we have been calmed
But I remember a revolution song

I recall the warning signs
I recall a voice inside
Speaking out, shouting loud
I recall singing proud

We have, we have been calmed
But I remember a revolution song
We have, we have been calmed

But I remember a revolution song
We have, we have been calmed
But I remember a revolution song
We have, we have been calmed
But I remember the revolution songs
