Set adrift on memory bliss of you...

Baby you send me, baby you send me...

Set adrift on memory bliss of you

The camera pans the cocktail glass,
Behind a blind of plastic plants;
I found the lady with the fat diamond ring
Then you know I can't remember a damn thing
I think it's one of those de ja vu things,
Or a dream that's tryin' to tell me something
Or will I ever stop thinkin' about it
I don't know, I doubt it
Subterranean by design,
I wonder what I would find if I met you,
Let my eyes caress you,
Until I meet the thought of Missess Princess Who?
I often wonder what makes her work
I guess I'll leave that question to the experts,
Assuming that there are some out there
They're probably alone, solitaire
I can remember when I caught up
With a pastime intimate friend
She said, "Bet you're probably gonna say I look lovely,
But you probably don't think nothin' of me."
She was right, though, I can't lie
She's just one of those corners in my mind,
And I just put her right back with the rest
That's the way it goes, I guess

Baby you send me, baby you send me

Set adrift on memory bliss of you

Baby you send me, baby you send me

Set adrift on memory bliss of you

A careless whisper from a careless man,
A neutron dance for a neutron fan;
Marionette strings are dangerous things,
I thought of all the trouble they bring
An eye for an eye, a spy for a spy,

Rubber bands expand in a frustrating sigh
Tell me that she's not dreaming
She's got an ace in the hole,
It doesn't have meaning
Reality used to be a friend of mine,
'cause complete control, I don't take too kind
Christina Applegate, you gotta put me on
Guess who's piece of the cake is Jack gone?
She broke her wishbone and wished for a sign
I told her whispers in my heart were fine
What did she think she could do?
I feel for her, I really do
And I stared at the ring finger on her hand,
I wanted her to be a big PM Dawn fan,
But I had to put her right back with the rest
That's the way it goes, I guess

Baby you send me, baby you send me
Set adrift on memory bliss of you
