Shut-in in winter months?
Was it hell?
Does the first sight of green
Make you swell?

'Cause now it is spring-time
When thoughts fill my mind
(And blood, what's remaining)

Weather's permitting
Now is the time

I've never been so charged
As I'm now
To see how the heat's drawn beads
From your brow

And now it is summer
And life's in its prime
And you're the example

I'm here if you're willing
Now is the time

I think I'd find it sweet to taste you
And to feel myself inside you

And when it is autumn
And thoughts fill my mind
Of school-time romances

The bright colors burning
Now is the time

These shades that burn soon turn
Into greys
The sun will bore and hoard
All its rays

It serves to remind me
I've just so much time

'Til all fades to nothing

We're young, and I'm willing
Now is the time

I think I'd find it sweet to taste you
And to feel myself inside you
