Do you remember on that day
We took you down off of the cross
And shot your ashes into space
Oh, what a waste of time to believe
You would ever come back to life
The resurrections were all faked
As the earth trembled and quaked
And all the stars fell from the sky
And all the pagans began to smile and sing

You remind me of a wolf in Jesus skin
I think it's safe to say the drugs are kicking in
(As you begin) to howl under the Baltimore moon
(As you begin) to shapeshift into a Christ-like cartoon

Come sting your teeth deep inside
This wet and elegant bride
Show her the time of her life
Then turn and leave her to die
The devil in so en vogue (x4)

Well, I remember when all the idiots and hordes
They stood tall like matadors
On the eve of the conviction
And the gruesome crucifixion
And through the hourglass of time
Hollow futures will unwind
Into the ghosts that haunt the past
But it never seems to last

I see you standing there
Your hands running through your hair
Bleeding on the countryside
Underneath a bright red sky

It's warm inside your broken heart
I know that I never want to leave
The sweetest sting of pains
Unlike anything I've ever felt before
Seconds before the gunshot blast
Ignites straight into your head
Save the last dance for your dying bride

Until the horsemen drag you away

Come sting your teeth deep inside
This wet and elegant bride
Show her the time of her life
Then turn and leave her to die
The devil in so en vogue (x4)

You remind me of a wolf in Jesus skin
I think it's safe to say the drugs are kicking in
(As you begin) to howl under the Baltimore moon
(As you begin) to shapeshift into a Christ-like cartoon
