I sort of thought I had a will and I thought I knew it deep down in my soul one single place the essence of a person never changing but traveling wild and winding ways I only mean that i'm surprised every time it happens every time I don't recognize my self Usual it ends in disappointment sleepless night and a tale to tell

Is it really worth the price we pay

when we don't want it Stay away from what we got and it's so funny how we hurt ourselves and make the same mistakes and never change when we get wiser Will we learn as time goes by and ain't funny how we hurt each other,
suffer on our own and never change

Now I don't try to excuse the way I acted I don't wanna put the blame on you but I was alone and I kind of liked it when I saw you walk across the room You really handled it with care and I hardly noticed but I became aware I was too confused Tangled up in you and didn't mind that I couldn't decide who was being used

Do you think it's worth the price we pay

when we don't want it
and it's so funny how we hurt ourselves and
make the same mistakes and never
Will we learn as time goes by and ain't funny how we
hurt each other,
suffer on our own and never change

let me ask you one thing

is it really worth the price we pay

and it's so funny how we hurt ourselves and

Will we learn as time goes by ain't funny how we hurt each other,

suffer on our own and never change
