Caught in the waves with my very last breath
And I'm lucky to still be standing
Out of the rules, to be run by wolves
And they run together

If I had my friends in the cool-light moments
It would be so warm, the embrace
And the call of wolves is never easy to receive
I'm Watching the World come on in
I'm Watching the World from over here

If you choose to remember everything and everyone
Who's caught in the race - zoom, zoom, zoom
And you're locking your defenses away
And the ruler rules you

If I had my friends in the cool-light moments
It would be so warm, the embrace
And the call of wolves is never easy to receive
How easy it happens!
I'm Watching the World come on in
I'm Watching the World suffering
I'm Watching the World tumble and fall from grace
I'm Watching the World from over...
I'm Watching the World from over...
I'm Watching the World from over...
I'm Watching the World from over...
I'm Watching the World from over...
I'm Watching the World fall from grace
Here's a big,
strong man
A man of pure integrity
But underneath I know
That he is weaker than me
Well you can hear me tell him
That he holds it on so strong
But inside he's ready to blow
It's loaded like a memory

And this feeling is more than ever and it comes in slow-mo

I'm a little bit surer than hopeful

I Got a little bit silly in my youth
And I could have been a bigger man
Smaller, well at least I'm not tainted like you.

This beauty's fine she's a call of my disgrace
She make you do anything you would
You could but I'm a little bit dim.
A wee bit crazy in my youth
And I'm a little bit strange
But oh that's better than to be you.

I'm a little bit surer than hopeful
I Got a little bit silly in my youth
And I could have been a bigger man
Smaller, well at least I'm not tainted like you.

And I could have been a bigger man-Smaller,
And I could have been a bigger man-Smaller,
I Got a little bit silly in my youth

And I could have been a bigger man-Smaller,
And I could have been a bigger man-Smaller,
I Got a little bit sille-sille-sille-sillyee...
