"What Do You Say?"

Woke up in the morning raised my head still yawning Well I was in for a surprise Stumbled to the mirror realised in horror
the face that stared back wasn't mine

And it seemed to be so strange this sudden facial change
What do you say?
What do you say?
I'd say it's quite strange
the way I've changed since yesterday

Went down to the kitchen hoping they would listen but no-one else could see, you see I could live sans danger but all night I saw a stranger
A stranger that I knew as me

And now it takes up all my time this face that is not mine

What do you say?
What do you say?
I'd say it's quite strange
the way I've changed since yesterday
Oh the way I've changed since yesterday
And so I rest my case
I don't want another's face
What do you say?
What do you say?
I'd say it's quite strange
the way I've changed since yesterday
Oh the way I've changed since yesterday
Oh the way I've changed since yesterday
Oh the way I've changed since yesterday.
