She is the dark one,
as a bird I watched her from my cold tower in the heavens
And when she fell from the north place, I flew down and embraced her

I took her where the snow falls forever, she showed me the haunted woods We gathered together in the oaken palace, free from both death and life
The fire blazed in her eyes one day and she tore the soul from my chest With a bleeding heart, I flew back to my cold tower
To never escape and lie in a pool of death forever
