black spring rising
she falls
by the way a black rainbow wispering my name by the way i changed the locks and i'm on a plane by the way i turned to dust washed away by rain by the way i burned your books and i changed my name
i took his hand it begins to snow refracted light of a black rainbow i crossed the desert but these seeds were sown there's no place like home i've got to get out
abort on the rent
i've got to get out
she said game over by the way the black narcissus on her bed of nails by the way i never got it redirect the mail by the way arrived to late already setting snail
