I've been trying to forget the things you said to me
All the promises we've broken they all come crashing down
This isn't how I thought it'll end
But I have got to face
Every moment lost without you
That I come to regret

How can I not forget you?
Three years, thirteen nights
This isn't how we planned it
And everytime I see your smile
It breaks my heart
But I'm not crying

And everytime that I'm alone
In this space that I call home
I almost often hear your voice
In this rather empty room
And I can't help but see your face
In the vastness of the crowd

I hope you hear this and listen
I cannot let go!

How can I not forget you?
Three years, thirteen nights
This isn't how we planned it
And everytime I see your smile
It breaks my heart
But I'm not crying

Why? Why?
I should have seen it coming for us
Why-y-y?
I should have seen it coming for us

How can I not forget you?
Three years, thirteen nights
This isn't how we planned it
And everytime I see your smile
It breaks my heart

But I'm not crying

And how can I not forget you?
Three years, thirteen nights
This isn't how we planned it
And everytime I see your smile
It breaks my heart
But I'm not crying

How will you expect me to stay
When, love, it's hard to breathe?
Three years, thirteen nights you were gone
Now I have to find myself for once
