Back in 1486

A great and grim king was at the lead

The last reign was to be

Of the glorious Aztec Empire

Montezuma was his name

Lord of Mexico

Gold, precious stones

Magnificent silver work

Feathers green adorned his figure

Almost like a God...

Mighty and majestic

Feared by everyone

When one day the god - like men

Came to conquer all his lands through fire and tears

Hostage he was held for fear

He could lead a raging revolt

Montezuma was his name

Lord of Mexico

Gold, precious stones

Magnificent silver work

Feathers green adorned his figure

He believed them gods

Mercyless rude warriors coming from far shores

He believed them friends

They would bring destruction, death,

And the end of all

He believed them gods

Mercyless rude warriors coming from far shores

He believed them friends

They would bring destruction, death

And the end of all

The curse of the king

And all his people
The deceived ones
Cursed their deceivers
Escape for no one
