Music & words: Randi Laubek

It was a night of cancer full moon

The water was a quiet grave

He dint know if he was mad or he was sane

But he did it just to ease his pain

She had a voice that moved the angels

She seemed so innocent and yet so wise

It didn't take him anytime to fall in love

But he did it just to ease his pain

Oh, madness, madness

Oh, sadness, sadness

So sang the siren on the sea

Oh, madness, madness

Oh, sadness, sadness

So sang the fisher on the sea

But are you still in love with me?

So he got drawn in to her love sea

He swam like weightless in her eyes

But in their ecstasy the question did arise

Did he die or did he stay alive?

Oh, madness, madness...etc.
