You say your doors are open but I don't want to use them
I should take my chances but I much rather lose them
Always the same table, set with the same dishes
Please have a seat and forget all of your wishes

You do things swiftly and you do things well
Now you must choose which of their products you should sell
It can be hard to know to make the right decisions
But if you look good you can go straight to television

All they promised us tomorrow we can take ourselves today
We don't need to hear their answers, we don't listen anyway
All they say we'll get tomorrow we can take ourselves today
And the things they say they work for, we don't want them anyway

When there's a party you are always invited
You should be happy and you should be delighted
What is your problem, can't you tell a little lie Shut up and smile and you might find the perfect guy

All they promised us tomorrow we can take ourselves today
We don't need to hear their answers, we don't listen anyway
All they promised they would give us we can take ourselves today
And the life that they still work for, we don't want it anyway

Yes, I can hear you talking but you can't make me listen Shout if you like but it won't change my disposition
My smile is real while yours is pale and hollow
You might not know it but it's me you have to follow

All they promised us tomorrow we can take ourselves today

We don't need to hear their answers, we don't listen anyway
All they say we'll get tomorrow we can take ourselves today
We don't need to have instructions or to hear that we're okay

All you promised us tomorrow we can take ourselves
today
And the things you say you work for, we don't want them anyway
The things you promised you will give us we can take ourselves today
We don't need to hear your answers, we don't listen
anyway
