You wore glasses, you were tall
You left your jacket in my hall
It smelled of life, it smelled of truth
And it was time to give up youth
Remember me darling
And please remember me now

It was in late 2008
And it was not much of a date
You said you forgot my name
But I was lost there just the same
Remember me darling
And please remember me now

You taught me how to play guitar
I taught you how to drive a car
The things you said were not all true
But more important they were new
Remember me darling
And please remember me now

You wore glasses, you were tall
You left your jacket in my hall
It smelled of life, it smelled of truth
And it was time to give up youth
Remember me darling
And I'll remember you now

It was in late 2008
And it was not much of a date
You said you forgot my name
But I was lost there just the same
Remember me darling
And please remember me now

We used to walk the streets at night
Looking for life, looking for light
And I remember that you said
That all your light was in my head
Remember me darling
And I'll remember you still

We used to walk the streets at night
Looking for life, looking for light
And I remember that you said
That all your light was in my head
Remember me darling
And please remember me still

You wore glasses, you were tall
You left your jacket in my hall
It smelled of life, it smelled of truth
And it was time to give up youth
Oh remember me darling
And please remember me now

You wore glasses, you were tall
You left your jacket in my hall
It smelled of life, it smelled of truth
And it was time to give up youth
Oh remember me darling
And please remember me now
