Somehow i never thought i would run into you again, anywhere at all. but i wondered aloud and asked anyone who knew you how you were. i hoped that you were well. still so much time has passed but there's nothing like seeing you. trouble stayed away, funny how it never did when you were here. takes my breath away, tears my heart apart to see how much we grew apart when we said good bye. still so much time has passed but there's nothing like seeing you. i won't try to replace. i won't try to pretend. good bye. good luck, i wish you well. still so much time has passed but there's nothing like seeing you. it could never dull the feeling of seeing an old friend (again).
