Over time I've watched you change. Now I wonder what you have become. What have you become? Has it dawned on you I haven't done a thing but sit back and watch you tear apart what we had. The only mistake I ever made was placing my faith in you but I can't control what's out of my hands (this time I know where I went wrong). Nothing we shared was ever good enough for you. Nothing we shared was ever good enough at all. There is no way, there's just no way you're going to turn it around on me. There is no way, there's just no way, you're going to take this away from me.
