Thumbing through all of these photos of days gone by,
I remember the way it was between you and me. And although I still believe that someday we'll be together again, I know it won't ever be the same. Did I mean anything to you or was it just a bunch of lies? I remember the times we had and all the memories that we shared, but I can't find a reason to miss you. Tell me I should throw it all away just like you threw me away. And when I see you again will I even know your name? And although I still believe that someday we'll be together again, I know it won't ever be the same.
How could it ever come close?
