It's so obvious that you mean everything to me, but it's so damn hard letting you climb in. And it's breaking your heart, always hoping that it's all going to change, but will you ever give up? Will you remember me that way? I was standing by your side. Will you remember me that way? I was standing here, pushed aside. You keep trying to understand me, thinking you are wasting all your time, "how could I be so blind?" And it's breaking your heart, always hoping that you aren't holding on for nothing at all. And so I'm holding on. You can promise me that you will save some time, save this time for me. Save this time, I'm holding on, save this for me.
