If i could go back and wipe away these footprints, i'd find an easier way. if you do go far, bring me along with you. don't forget where you belong, remember to look deep into my eyes before you say good bye. remember to look beyond your crying eyes before you say good bye. first it was a promise, now it's another threat that you would run away from here. could it be we've lost it all? no way i could believe that you would run away from here. remember to look deep into my eyes before you say good bye. remember to look beyond your crying eyes before you say good bye. when it's all said and done, we're all we've got and i can't forget.
