I can summon up my courage, take on the whole world
Turn around and break down just like a little girl
And I come out swinging when my back's against the wall
And my mama always told me better walk before you crawl

I need a man who can love all the women I am

I'm a mother of lost causes, a sister of the road
I'd give my heart to a song but I'd never sell my soul
I'm good at keeping it together when the edges start to fray
When I'm sewing up the loose ends at the end of every day

I need a man who can love all the women I am

Sometimes I'm hard to handle, burn hotter than a candle
But I, I melt in the right hands
Boy, you love without condition, ain't always easy living with
All the women I am

I'm a daughter of the red dirt, okie, dust still in my bones
But I can light up New York City with my red hair and Rhinestones
I'll still be my mama's baby when my babies fly away
My moods change like the weather but my faith, it stays the same

And I need a man who can stand all the women I am
I need a man who can love all the women I am

All the women that I am, oh, oh

Sometimes I'm hard to handle, burn hotter than a candle
But I, I melt in the right hands
Boy, you love without condition, ain't always easy living with

All the women I am

Hey, I'm a realist, I'm a dreamer
I'm a silver lining seeker
I'm a devil or an angel
Who come running when you need her

'Cause I need a man who can love all the women I am
Oh, I want a man who can love all the women I am
Hey, you're a man who can love all the women I am

You're the man I needed all along
All the women that I am
You can handle me, baby, all the women I am
All the women that I am

Yeah, you're the man
All the women I am
All the women that I am
All the women that I am
