you take the records
ill take the stereo
you get the tv ill take the radio you dishes
and me the pot and pans you'll need a new car more than me so ill take the second hand we'll each keep our own freinds and divide the rest in two the older kids seem to understand still there's one thing left to do over in the corner our little one sits and cires and behind her swell of tears shes asking with her eyes whatcha gonna do about me

is it daddy on the weekend and momma rest of the week will i have to make new friends live on a diffrent street who's gonna be the one who tucks me in to sleep oh whatcha gonna do, whatcha gonna do about me

I gave her a hug
she pushed me away
i said in time youll understand and maybe we both will someday i wiped away her tears and said it wont be so bad she said will you still be my mommy will he still be my dad

how can i tell her when i don't know for sure why her mom and dad don't love each other anymore
