Iâ€™m plugged into the machine for my daily medicine
I donâ€™t know what my bodyâ€™s doing and I donâ€™t want to feel a thing
Not today, not today

I walk my avatar through the world
Hide my heart cause itâ€™s much too large for you to hold
Thereâ€™s a reservoir behind these walls

Wait, I want to touch you
Wait, I want to see you
Itâ€™s not too late for me to dismantle the machine
I donâ€™t want to be alone
I donâ€™t want to be alone

I can barely feel my fingers in control
I can barely feel your breath on my skin

Iâ€™m not sure what my bodyâ€™s doing here
Why itâ€™s feeling so many things today, today

Iâ€™m sucked out into the screen
A bundle of thoughts clogging up the machine
But my heart longs to be seen

Wait, I want to touch you
Wait, I want to see you
Itâ€™s not too late for me to dismantle the machine
I donâ€™t want to be alone
I donâ€™t want to be alone

Outside the sun is shining
I can see us on our picnic rug Thereâ€™s no where for me to be today but
In my body, meeting yours
