Their skies turn black their floors fall out it rains for what seems like forever and ever and thicker than water even thicker than blood they press on when the road has ended at the end of the world just remember what doesn't kill you makes you that much stronger be still my friend in time you only have to know things will get better we're by your side have faith remember the good times don't try so hard to make sense out of anything at all now when there's no explanation when you're feeling somewhat conquered there is hope
