

Red Foley

"Living As Strangers"

Visit "Living As Strangers" on MotoLyrics.com

(Bill Phillips - Jean Stromatt)

We can't go on living as strangers
Knowing we once loved each other so
Your lips used to be so warm and tender
But lately they are growing cold.

We're living as strangers, strangers in our home
The vows we made together have turned into regret
We're living as strangers there's no more love at all
It's over now we might as well forget.

--- Instrumental ---

So tenderly you told me that you love me
But that was when our love was sweet and new
But now since we've been living as strangers
We both must realize our love is through.

We're living as strangers, strangers in our home
The vows we made together have turned into regret
We're living as strangers there's no more love at all
It's over now we might as well forget...

Visit Red Foley page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.