The more words, the less meaning
So we'll just say nothing at all
Your silence and my screaming
Problems we couldn't solve

These miles of memories
Seem to lose their beauty
You're fine, you're amazing
Not thinking of me

There's no room to make things better
"Would you just stop trying,"
The last words that I heard from her
And I will not stop crying

'Cause now that I've loved
And now that I've lost
What I feel inside says that Shakespeare lied
Because it wasn't worth this cost
Of all of these places that I cannot visit
Just a reminder of all of our time
All of this music, it only seems useless
In bringing you back into mind

If time heals, I'm not aging
I've been here so long
I can't help from shaking
Lord, make me strong

There's no room to make things better
"Would you just stop trying,"
The last words that I heard from her
And I will not stop crying

And if Romeo didn't love Juliet so damn much,
Then he'd still be alive
And if you hadn't given up
Then tragedy never struck
And I might have survived
