These apathetic eyes Dark just like the sky the raindrops hit the window sill so leave me here tonight Leave me by myself with all my imperfections Running through my head everything I wished I was Running through my head

Forget about the sun tonight the world revolves around you

I could swear your frown Pulled the clouds down from the sky Created this fog tonight
And on the car ride home
You retreated to your head
A thousand words I should have said
Running through my head
But we just stared at the road
Running through my head
And you just cried

Forget about the sun
tonight the world revolves around you
