I wouldn't like to live alone
I wouldn't like to see myself down, but sometimes I would.
I'd like to keep my head clean all the time, but sometimes I can't.
And I'm sure I know my reason to be, but right now I don't
Our thoughts are connected, our thoughts are infected, Are rejected by daily routine
Our hearts are connected, your blood is infected That won't do - that won't do?
a light against our daily routine On the spur of this momentyou are listening to the words not meant for you
But we don't know what time the lights went out
Wiser ones might have done worse in such a pass
We don't know what time the lights went out
And if we strove with doubt or anger, none of us could say
I wouldn't like to live alone
I wouldn't like to see someone down But sometimes I would
And I think I have my own identity, but just as long as I talk
I wouldn't like to talk so much. Anyway, I don't.
Our thoughts are destructive - and sold as constructive but we hope that restrictions vanish and let your dreams come true.. not imitation - nor instigation That's one thing, that's one thing to be deemed "angry"
Notwithstanding - well intended And on the spur of this momentloyalty divided by confusion in our hearts There are so many things we want to do in our life, but no decision can be made.
Every step we take (make) is preceded by rational thinking, and our hearts fade.
Moments in which we let feelings take let me, us, you rise against daily routine!
life is so beautiful a seeming idyll full of repressed violence

we follow blindly cognizant of you trinkets I'd like to see you down
But we don't know what time the lights went out
Wiser ones might have done worse in such a pass
We don't know what time the lights went out
And if we strove with doubt or anger, none of us could say
