I came across this letter I wrote to you after our last
fight

We were down in Jamaica

To say the least, things hadn't worked out right

And I guess we just lost contact

Somewhere down the line

I just wanted you to know that I'm doing fine

Remember that old diner?

We used to meet there after your night class

I told you things I'd never told no one

You just smiled at me and said

"You can't live in the past"

I just wanted you to know

I'm doing fine when I don't think of you

Girl, I hope you're all right

('Cause I'm doing fine)

I'm doing fine when I don't close my eyes

See your face one more time

I'm doing fine

I was never good at writing letters

Don't want to complicate your life

Besides, I don't even know where you live now

Though I found your number

Nearly dialed it once or twice

I hear you married some rich architect

Congratulations

I'm happy for you most of the time

I just wanted you to know

I'm doing fine when I don't think of you

Girl, I hope you're all right

('Cause I'm doing fine)

I'm doing fine when I don't close my eyes

See your face one more time
I'm doing fine

Don't worry about me
I just hope you're all right

I came across this letter I wrote to you after our last
fight
You should know I'm doing fine
