Another day
And now I wake into
Another day
With nothing left to do
Because it's all been done before
And there's nothing more
Well that's something I can't say

I can't say I believe
That things are okay
I'm waiting for something
To happen and change
Then your days and my nights could be

More than average
More than average

Are we wasting our time?
Is there nothing to find?
'Cause everything in my life should be much more than average

Show me the way
So I can make it through
Show me the things

That I stil have to do
You see, it's all been done before
And there's nothing more
Well that's something I can't say

I can't say I believe
That things are okay
I'm waiting for something
To happen and change
Then your days and my nights could be

More than average
More than average

Are we wasting our time?
Is there nothing to find?

More than average

More than average

More than average

More than average
