After all the time that has passed

It might seem like a lie to you

But I haven't gotten accustomed (to being without you)

It seems like it was only yesterday

That first day that we saw each other naked

I always thought

That life would go on

But without you

Everything was left (feels) cut in half

Half-way living

Half-way feeling

Life is passing me by

And I can't find any way out without you

After all the time that has passed

I still wait like always

In the same place

Even so, I manage to feel

Your chest pressed against mine

And your heartbeat

And each time

It's more difficult for me each time

It's because without you
Everything was left (feels) cut in half
We have been talking for a long time
And I won't bore you anymore
With my speech
I only called to see
If by chance, you also
Were needing (me)
There's no harm in
Talking every once in a while
There's no harm
It's just that without you
I breathe with only one lung
And without you
Everything was left (feels) cut in half
Half-way living, half-way feeling
