Six o'clock in the morning, you've just gone to sleep,
I wipe a tear from my eye;
It can't be the kind of company I keep,
That keeps me askin', you keep me askin', you keep me wonderin' why.

I don't treat you, like I'd like to teat you,
Every planet in the sky, is in your eyes,
But I don't treat you like I,
No I don't treat you like I,
No I don't treat you like I should.

It could be the comfort goin' to my head,
That makes me wanna dream of you,
But while you're sleeping softly in your bed,
I want to tell you, I'd like to tell you, I'd love to tell you too.

I don't treat you, like I'd like to treat you,
Every diamond in the sky,
Is in your eyes,
But I don't treat you like I,
No I don't treat you like I, No I don't treat you like I should.

I know you would say, You love my way,
It's good enough for you,
But I know for sure, I could do more.
