Everybody told me, and I knew it myself
Don't drink the water, it's bad for your health
But God it's hot, I had no choice
The sun had burned down on me
And even though they told me so
I drank it deep, drank it deep

Even though we both know
What we know, we can't say no

The world is blind to what it finds
The world is blind though the sun shines

Now I kneel before the sacred basin
And offer up the sweetest of all sins
But God it's hot, I had no choice
The sun had burned down on me
And even though they told me so
I drank it deep, drank it deep

Even though we both know
What we know, we can't say no

The world is blind to what it finds
The world is blind though it shines

Even though we both know
What we know, we can't say no

The world is blind to what it finds
The world is blind though it shines
