You could bring me all the glitter and gold in the sky
Sing me a love song that makes a grown man cry
But it's just a little too late... a little too late for love
And you could stand on a mountain screaming my name
Even bare me your soul, sorrow, and shame
But it's just a little too late... a little too late for love

And you could promise to forever be my one and only
And tell me again... how I'll never be sad or lonely
But I know... I know I'll never walk through that door with you again
I'm a much stronger Man then I was back then

You could steal me the moon and blow out the sun
Seduce me with words with the flick of your tongue
But it's just a little too late... a little too late for love.
Said just a little too late... a little too late for love.

And you could promise to forever be my one and only
And tell me again... how I'll never be sad or lonely
But I know... I know I'll never walk through that door with
you again
I'm a much stronger Man then I was back then, yes I am

You could spell it all out for me with a stick in the sand Even place the whole damn world in the palm of my hand
But it's just a little too late... a little too late for love
Yeah I said, it's too late... it's too late
It's a little too late for love.
