If you try to measure time
It's gone before the twinkle of an eye
Burns out like a candle
Blacks out like the sky
Can you remember all the skins that you've shed
All the dreams stained on your bed
Words that your feel
Feelings that you've said
Think of all the things we break
The gifts that you might take
You embrace the silence of the night until you try
To fill it up with silence

In your head
In your head
In your head
In your head
In your head
In your head

Do you invent your history
And brave enough to steal the memory
Can you get a failure to think you are free
Can you remember all the times you tried to teach
The arms you've tried to reach
I still don't know the difference between what we accept or believe
Think of all the times you've lied
Places that you've tried
Do you think that in your heart that it's all true
Just not fair, oh

In your mind
In your mind
In your mind
In your mind
In your mind
In your mind

Fallen like a soldier
Risen as the same

Do you think that you are graceful
You really jumped the gun
You think that you're the one
Are your hopeful you can leave a trace of yourself

When you're dead
When you're dead
When you're dead
When you're dead
When you're dead
In your head

I say..
I say..
In your head
