I can't believe that we survived the silent songs the night conspires while we sleep alone in our beds waiting for our eyes to fall in rest

Remember when we used to think that all of our childhood dreams would fall into place by some heavenly grace

But now I can see, I've made a big mistake

I've been searching for something that holds hope like water Only to find that these paths have led me into this desolate desert lands
And I try
I try so hard to paint my dreams in darkness
But in the light I can see your every little mistake Everytime it's too late to hide
I just wanna fade right out of myself
Like when shadows disappear in twilight And it's getting so much harder to accept the fact that I am stuck here

I can't hide from my own eyes, I can't hide from my own...

own...
