"Spinning Wheel"

Funny thing about growing older is I start looking back Over my shoulder and I start thinking that Someone else I could have been if I'd done it differently
There I go lost again in some kind of fantasy

Without your love I couldn't keep it real Without your love I'd be a spinning wheel

Funny thing about dreams is that when they don't come true
When the real world don't do just like I want it to
And the voices in my head start talking and they just won't quit
It's like I'm trying to put the pieces of a puzzle
Back together and they just won't fit

Now if there ever was a time
When I needed to find a little peace of mind
And I don't know how, it's now
