(by Terre Roche)

Didn't you ever feel like the largest Elizabeth in the World?

Usually at a time when the boy is oblivious to the girl
I read in the paper the other day this has been happening to everybody more and more
The scientists are on the case but they still haven't figured out what it is that it is happening for

Slow down, slow down, slow down

Wouldn't you like to feel like yourself after suffering so many years?

If you were asked to the party by somebody else you wouldn't be sitting home in tears

Or maybe you're one of those interesting people who don't go out but they get their best work done

By keeping themselves in the house off the street and away from the scene when it's time for the rest to have fun

Slow down, slow down, slow down

Come on, slow down, slow down

They say the world's over Goodbye see you next time
You don't have to go

What if the aftereffect of the terrible bomb is unusual beyond belief?

Wouldn't you rather the whole population had listened to somebody like the old Indian Chief?

Turn it around and go back to that simple truck stop on the way to the unfortunate
world

You might be the largest Elizabeth but Elizabeth is still a good name to have if you're a girl

Slow down, come on, slow down

Slow down, slow down, slow down

Slow down, slow down, slow down
