What is my life without your image
What is the way to live without you
What is a thing without you, that I can do
What was the way I could've got a hold on you?
So what are my times meant to be used for?
Who should I beg for, after I lose you

I'm looking at the sky
Picturing me and some friends of my
And you're not there
But you used to be, I'd care
You left what you thought
All the grace you brought
I'm erasing them now
Maybe that was since you were gone

What is my life without your image
What is the way to live without you
What is a thing without you, that I can do
What was the way I could've got a hold on you?
So what are my times meant to be used for?
Who should I beg for, after I lose you

Now I have bent, and I have fold
Every day, every night but never felt it cold
I'll just admit that I'm jealous of you
I could've kept a secret but that will not do
Nothing changed so much
Despite that I had more questions

What is my life without your image
What is the way to live without you
What is a thing without you, that I can do
What was the way I could've got a hold on you?
So what are my times meant to be used for?
Who should I beg for, after I lose you
Who do you want now, what was my blame?

What is my life without your image
What is the way to live without you
What is a thing without you, that I can do
What was the way I could've got a hold on you?

So what are my times meant to be used for?
Who should I beg for, after I lose you
Who do you want now, what was my blame?

What is my life without an image
With my white sight, now it's useless
I can blame you anytime I want
But I was never clever enough to taunt
Can you not see, it was since you were gone

What is my life without your image
What is the way to live without you
What is a thing without you, that I can do
What was the way I could've got a hold on you?
So what are my times meant to be used for?
Who should I beg for, after I lose you
Who do you want now, what was my blame?
