When you get what you don't need
When you tried so hard but don't succeed
You want to explain yourself but you can't
And you realize that it's always like this
But you don't try

As the teardrops go down your face
You can't find someone that can replace
You tried your best but couldn't sustain
You can't explain

Light shines you through
But it can't make you any good
And you hate how you feel so weak
That you can't do anything about it
So many times that the same thing has happened
You can't deny, you always give up slowly

It's either if you win or you lose
It's rather obvious than having no clues
You know your weakness but you let heart win
And you realize that it's always like this
But you don't know why

As the teardrops go down your face
You can't find someone that can replace
As the teardrops appear so clearly
You want to know why

As the teardrops go down your face
You try to know all the mistakes
As the teardrops appear so clearly
Don't want to show you've cried

Light shines you through
But it can't make you any good
And you hate how you feel so weak
That you can't do anything about it
So many times that the same thing has happened
You can't deny, you always give up slowly
