She couldn't follow her heart
It was under his eyes
She was the best, and that won't change
The only bitter was she made those lies
There's no sympathy for the man
He was trapped, by her
The heart was broken, and it won't come back
He's there to suffer love
Without her, she left him there

She was an angel left from heaven
And never gave back what she had taken
Her lies were a lifetaker
She puts them in dreams
But never let them free
Still she's not a devil
But cruel enough
And the men come to mind
They start leaving there lives to me
As a secret, but they thought that she couldn't see
Yet she's not a devil, she is an unsacred angel

She's got the looks that kill
And the same white pills
But they won't kill her
She makes you take them

Now she gave a reason them
Although it never made sense
But they were living in it
Without knowing it will come as waste

And they wish to wake up from the dreams
They pinch themselves wishing for no pain
But it hurts, like their hearts
She's still an angel, still an angel

She was an angel left from heaven
And never gave back what she had taken
Her lies were a lifetaker
She puts them in dreams
But never let them free

Still she's not a devil
But cruel enough
And the men come to mind
They start leaving there lives to me
As a secret, but they thought that she couldn't see
Yet she's not a devil, she is an unsacred angel

She leaves them, with a new name
She leaves them, letting them end their game
But she's a true angel, and that won't change

She was an angel left from heaven
And never gave back what she had taken
Her lies were a lifetaker
She puts them in dreams
But never let them free
Still she's not a devil
But cruel enough
And the men come to mind
They start leaving there lives to me
As a secret, but they thought that she couldn't see
Yet she's not a devil, she is an unsacred angel

Now I see her leaving from my sight...
