I don't want to change my heart
I just want to leave it there
Let it burn and make things restart
Like before when I drove myself in despair
And I'll look behind to see every road
Every path, every slate that I have ever known
They'll make me take another step
Picking up all the times that I have left

But I'll stop here, take a breath
I'll separate myself apart from this world
Cause' something is in my way
Something I left there until today
Something I cannot try to break
I'm too weak, that's a fact I cannot fake
In this world, in this world
I'll put myself, I'll put myself
Away from what I have become

I won't care about agony
It's just the same with misery
This is the end!

Watch the clock tick another time
Once more, I'll need to take you out of mind
Let it burn and make things restart
Just like you to go and me to play my part

But I'll stop here, take a breath
I'll separate myself apart from this world
Something I left there until today
Something that blocks my way
Something I cannot dare to break
I'm too weak, that's a fact I cannot fake
In this world, in this world
I'll put myself, I'll put myself
Away from what I have become
From what I have become

I won't care about agony
It's just the same with misery
This is the end!

(Bridge)

And I'll stop here, take a breath
Look back to every sin that I have done
To cross them away, and start again
From my heart, where I have zero to begin
I'll make sure that nothing will block my way
Something I left there until today
Something I cannot dare to break
I may be weak, that might be a fact that I cannot fake
But in this world, in this world
I'll put myself, and accept myself
Away from what I have become
From what I have become

But in this world, in this world
I'll put myself, and accept myself
Away from what I have become
From what I have become
I may be weak, that might be a fact that I cannot fake
But in this world, in this world
I'll put myself, and accept myself
Away from what I have become
From what I have become
