I'll rather erase all my life
If this is what I get
From all my time
I'll restart my life with all the pain
If that makes it better
Than what I've got

I don't know what's worth it
If nothing seems alright
I don't even know if I deserve it
When my sight is growing dim
With abiding pain

These words are my farewell
To all the people in this ending story
When I bring this life down
I'll start again with everything white

I don't know if I'm just crazy
Being emotional and dying
I don't even know if this is the right way
But I've got no more I can't stop

Whatever pain may come after
I'd washed away everything painful
When I bring this life down
I'll start again with everything white

I might not get what I want
But it's better than what I have right now
When I bring this life down
I'll start again with everything white
And I'll make another starting story
Where everything will be alright
When things go wrong there
I'll start again with everything white

I might not be so wrong
After I finish this last dark song
I can start everything again
With everything
Everything white

And I'll make another starting story
Where everything will be alright
I'll start again with everything white

I might not be so wrong
I might not be a failure
Maybe I'm better than what
I've always thought
But
I need to start everything again
If I'm not going to start this thing again
I'm making this problem white
With nothing wrong
I don't need anything white
I just need to wash away
This black black pain

I'll start again
Forgive what I made black
Make everything white
I'll start again with everything white
Everything white
Everything insight
Everything white
