Verse 1

I lay often in my Heart shaped coffin
And these wounds wont seem to heal
No this pain is just too real

I look away

From the creature
In the mirror becomes my preacher
And I tell him he is wrong
I cant help but sing along

I look away

Sunday morning and these feelings arent adjourning
Church bells ring and we all sing
But I sing I sit and think

About the day

When the sun went down
My hands were tied and I was drowned
You cant believe its true
But Im emotions big debut

I wanna say

Chorus

A though a blink a small delay
And nothings gonna go your way
This air is stale and I dont want to talk about us

And I dont care what your friends say
The engines dying anyway
And I know now that everything gonna be

Alright alright
Everythings gonna be

Verse 2

I forget a lot
That love and fate can both be bought
So put it on my bill
Right under all the cheap thrills

You took away
Shades of black are sinking into photographs and charcoal skin
I took the blame
But to you its all the same

I walked away

Staring at an hour glass
We sat and tried to change the past
But nothing turned out right
It only turned day into night

I look away

You said wed be here till death well I guess I ran out of breath and you kept me awake just to call me a mistake all the workds are on a page all they do is fade with age and make me say

Chorus

And I dont care what your friends say

Everythings gonna be
