They met in a hurricane Standing in the shelter, out of the rain She tucked a note into his hand.

Later on they took his car drove on down to where the beaches are he wrote her name in the sand never even let go of her hand

Somehow they stayed that way, for those five days in may made all those stars around them shine funny how you can look in vain livin on nerves and such sweet pain lonlieness that cuts so fine find the place you've seen a thousand times sometimes the world begins to set you up on your feet again

and no one wipes the tears from your eyes how will you ever know the way that circumstances go Its gonna hit you by surprise but i know my past you were there everything I've done, you are the one

Looking back its hard to tell why they stood while others fell spend your life working it out all I know's one cloudy day, they both just ran away rain on the windsheild headed south oh she loved the lines around his mouth

again
