Bought a pancho and sandals
I threw away my shoes Brought a toothbrush and a razor
I probably won't use Hit the track, I turned my back on the Headlines News
On my way to meet the moon on the bay Where she's risin' big and full and blue

Well the gringo boys got their dark sunglasses
And the girls on the beach are all shakin' their fingers
'Cause no matter how dark the lenses
They can see that the eyes and the minds of the boys are somewhere they ain't supposed to be

The breeze is blowin' me a new perfume
It's givin' my heart a little elbow room
And the kids are lightin' firecrackers
Boom! Boom! Boom!

No one recalls when the clock on the wall stopped wavin' its hands all day Maybe it died of loneliness or boredom Rest in peace, you konw it's better this way

The breeze is blowin' me a new perfume
It's givin' my heart a little elbow room
And the kids are lightin' firecrackers
Boom! Boom! Boom!

And all my friends are laughin'
at each other's lies
And the sea is singin' lullabies
And everything's slowin' down flowin' counterclockwise

Some of the Americans are ugly Americans
But we know we ain't all that way
So we nod and we smile and we wait a little while

Because they never stay anywhere very long anyway

The breeze is blowin' me a new perfume
It's givin' my heart a little elbow room
And the kids are lightin' firecrackers
Boom! Boom! Boom!

And all my friends are laughin'
at each other's lies
And the sea is singin' lullabies
And everythin's slowin' down flowin' counterclockwise...
