So many times we find ourselves here
Looking just about anywhere but in each other's eyes
I'm wondering, why?
So many chances brushed then wasted
So many matches almost won in injury time
Nobody cried

We're kicking pieces out of each other
Instead of kicking the pain in our hearts
Where do we start?

Well, we can reach and we can climb
And we can turn this ship around in time
That's why I'm holding out for you
I'm not buying that it's over
You can tell me anything
But I'm not buying that it's broken

So many fixes come too easy
Leave us so unsatisfied
Chasing the kite, addicted to high
So many patches we have worn
So many promises stillborn
We're so blind, we kill more than time

Intoxicated, drowning each other
Instead of drowning the pain in our hearts
Where do we start?

Well, we can reach and we can climb
And we can turn this ship around in time
That's why I'm holding out for you
I'm not buying that it's over
You can sell me anything
But I'm not buying that it's broken

We'll walk with innocence, we'll leave the ignorance
We'll walk together, let's break this silence
Don't wanna fight no more, wanna feel the light some more
Let's run together and break this silence
I'm holding out for you, reaching out for you

No way that this is through

If we just, if we just, we can reach
We can reach, we just reach and we can climb
And we can hold on by our fingers to what is right

I'm holding out for you, I'm not buying that it's over Just tell it the way it is
I'm holding out for you, reaching out for you
No way that this is true
You can tell me anything, sell me anything
To hell with everything, 'cause I'm not buying that it's over
