

Dark At Dawn

"Daybreak"

Visit "Daybreak" on MotoLyrics.com

As the sky's a flame, he stood high upon that hill
Only him to blame, on his limbs this frozen chill That calls on him, the glow's beyond these mountainsides
And creeps his skin, he prays for sun, he prays for light

Now he fears so deep the second coming of a day
Just to fall asleep, his skin still covered by the haze
That veils his eyes, and in the crimson light of dawn
His life's demise - a stillborn child there in his arms

Chorus

This son of mine - Take me
Broken his eyes - Break me
A life for a life - Freeze my heart beneath this new horizon...

As the sight grew clear, a sparrow glides from far above
For to touch so dear, oh, this tiny child, my love
A lifeblood's leave, as the beam caresses its wings
It sings the tune, calling lost life from deep within

Chorus

Taking this side for to give him some time - breaks a day
Changing a light is a barter of time - seals the way

Chorus

Visit Dark At Dawn page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.